MSU Job Clinic Convenes Today; Panels Are Listed

The first annual job clinic will convene today at 1 p.m. in the Student Union auditorium.

H. T. Engstrom, assistant personnel director, Mountain States Telephone and Telegraph company, will open the conclave and speak on "what the business man expects of college graduates."

Classes will not be dismissed for the clinic, which lasts through the evening, but students may pick up official excuses from the ushers at the auditorium.

The job clinic committee is headed by Charles Little, Helena.

The panel members, about 55, were assembled after many inquiries had been sent out, and constitute known leaders in their respective fields.

All of the participants are here because they are cognizant of the wave of unrest in the employment area, and want to aid under-graduates and the forthcoming graduates, Little said.

Procedure Counseling

Panel members will be eager to counsel anyone concerning preparation for a career, and the most expeditious procedure to follow after graduation.

"This is an outstanding milestone in the development of a closer relationship between businessmen and university students," Little said yesterday.

H. T. ENGSTROM

"We hope for a large turnout," he said, "because if the clinic is a success this year, we'll make it an annual affair."

There are four main panels scheduled to convene following Mr. Engstrom's keynote speech. They are: business administration, science, education, and general.

Out-of-State Tuition Cut Begins Sept. 1

The reduction in tuition for out-of-state students from $100 to $50 applies only to MSU non-residents and will become effective Sept. 1 of this year, an amended report from the president's office revealed.

The original release stated that the decrease would go into effect July 1 and for both MSU and MSC non-residents.

Authorization for the reduced fee by the state board of education came out of Dr. A. S. Merrill's study of out-of-state tuitions charged by other institutions in the Rocky Mountain, Northwest, and Southwest regions. The study, which was requested by President McCain, revealed that the average fee at 19 colleges and universities was $54.50. Only three schools, all in the Dakotas, had tuitions of less than $50.

On this basis President McCain took up the report with MSU's budget and policy committee which recommended the decrease to the executive council of the Greater University system. Approval by the executive council was followed by the state board's authorization.

President McCain stated that the non-resident fee was boosted in the fall of 1947 from $25 to $100 to help meet rising costs of instruction and to limit the post-war boom in out-of-state enrollees.

PETITION DEADLINE SET

Noon tomorrow is the deadline for the filing of petitions by all candidates planning to enter the Aber day primaries. Petitions may be picked up in the Student Union business office and must be returned to the office by Friday noon in order to be validated by Central board.

The rules in the M book governing election petitions will apply to this year's office seekers.

Has Anyone Seen A Lost Master?

Switchboard operators in Main hall often are asked odd questions by students, but this one takes the cake.

Recently one of the operators answered a call from one of the women's dorms and was confronted with a request for information about a Toscanini.

The operator said she knew of no such person on the campus but the young lady was firm in her conviction that the student files contained some information concerning this person so she pressed her demand for information.

After a look through the T's the operator suggested the possibility that the young lady might be wrong.

No, she couldn't be wrong. She had to write a paper about Toscanini and had looked at all the books in the library and couldn't find anything. So, he had to be in the student files someplace.

Has anybody seen him around?

Wylder, Payne Running For Top ASMSU Posts

The political situation blew sky-high last night when a group of campus leaders announced they had formed a new non-partisan party designed to "drive privilege government from MSU forever."

Panhel Bans Greek Slate Vote Policy

By MARGE HUNTER

Panhellenic council grew up last night.

Without any of the reservations which marked yesterday's Interfraternity political move, they junked—once and for all—the Panhellenic portion of the Greek slate.

Members of the sorority world are now officially released from the centralized system of the past few years. They are now quite free to think and vote as they individually desire.

The old system was unique. The more powerful Interfraternity council simply parceled out a fair share of offices to the feminine contingent. Like dutiful little girls, Panhellenic hastily selected a group of candidates to complete the Greek roster.

Private Primaries

How were they chosen?—The women's council merely conducted its own private primary election. Each sorority chose likely candidates from among its membership, the names were tossed together, and an hour or so was devoted to consideration and selection with due regard to fairly dividing the political pie.

Now and then a Greek went astray. Pat Miller and Doris Lund leaped the bounds two years ago in write-in campaigns. But the practice was frowned upon.

For a year, thinking council members have chafed under the restrictive system. This week their opportunity came. On the heels of the ISA demise and Interfraternity's "no Greek slate" announcement, Panhellenic unanimously favored a motion which meant its withdrawal from campus politics.

The council's decision left sorority women free to join any political party, to back any candidate for any office—to run a candidate for the ASMSU presidency if they so desire.

Greek Blocks May Arise

There were some doubts. Delegates wondered if block voting would result, if fraternity-sorority alliances would emerge. Some wondered if now campus politics would merely be a glorified popularity contest.

But they took the chance and assumed the responsibility for proving the wisdom of their decision. Council members and the groups they represent can go a number of ways. They can descend to the level of petty politics—the "you vote for my candidate and I'll vote for yours" method. They can all fine members of their groups for not voting for the "house" candidate. Or they can make intelligent use of the campus political system. They can look to qualification rather than personality. They can investigate and select platforms rather than being made-to-order members of the Greek machine.

O'CONNOR PLAYS LEAD FOR ONE PERFORMANCE

Carroll O'Connor, Missoula, out of "Antigone" on the opening night because of a back injury, is going back in for one performance. He will appear as Creon in tonight's performance, but Jesper Jensen, Copenhagen, Denmark, will resume the part Friday and Saturday.

Called the Unity party, it is made up of independent Greeks, members of the old ISA (Independent) party, and unaffiliated students. In a stiffly worded program, it announced it would:

1. Call for an immediate investigation of the athletic financial situation "in order to protect student money."

2. Establish a financial planning commission to recommend changes in the budget "so that student money will be spent according to the number of students benefited."

3. Appoint a commission to draw up plans for revising the constitution "so that Central board officers will be elected from living groups rather than from classes."

4. Appoint students to ASMSU committees "on the basis of merit."

5. Recommend that MSU join the National Student association.

All Represented

To put their program across, party leaders said they had chosen their slate without reference to fraternity or sorority affiliation.

"We have unaffiliated candidates, sorority candidates, fraternity candidates," the statement said, "and they are the best we could find. Now is the time for all those who are tired of pork-barrel government to rally to a non-partisan program."

The party is not putting up a slate for class officers.

Interfrat Hit

The party statement scorned the decision of Interfraternity council to allow Greek houses to run the candidates they choose.

"This is the latest example of Interfraternity council hypocrisy," the statement said. "The council never intended to throw the race open. President Bob Burns deliberately gave this false impression to the Kaimin in order to throw dust in the public's eyes."

"The council told each house it could run only one additional candidate besides those chosen by the council. This is Interfrat democracy! Burns backed down when his bluff was called."

"Some of the Greek candidates may have ability, but they have no program, and those with so-called experience have been Central

Graduate School In Social Work May Open in Fall

Lack of suitable candidates to fill positions is the only thing holding back the establishment of a one-year graduate school for social workers at the University, Pres. James A. McCain said yesterday.

However, prospective candidates are still being examined, and it is likely that the school will be ready to start operation next fall, he said.

Realizing the serious need for such a school, the board of education had authorized its establishment two years ago, the president said. Its purpose will be to help train administrators under the state welfare program, for positions as truant officers in schools and positions as juvenile officers under the district courts.

People, Platform, Politics

Perhaps a long-awaited day in the university political story is upon us. During the past few days the most important barriers to honest, impartial campus elections have fallen.

First, the Independents decided to call off their program of opposing Greek candidates principally because they were Greek candidates. This move permitted the houses to loosen the bonds which, hitherto, they had felt were needed to combat the numerically stronger unaffiliated group.

After a short period of side-stepping and doubletalk, Interfraternity finally took a bold step and threw the elections wide open as far as the fraternities were concerned. Last night, after a little soul searching, Panhellenic council followed Interfrat's lead.

And then came the announcement that a hybrid group of unaffiliates and Greeks had organized a non-partisan ticket representing both of the old political camps.

With the houses free to run candidates for all positions, a non-partisan group sponsoring a slate, and the field open for anyone else to run on an independent ticket, it appears that the campus citizenry will have no lack of candidates from which to choose in the Aber balloting.

We have sufficient faith in the houses to believe that they will put up people qualified for the positions. We believe that the Unity slate and platform are excellent.

In short, we believe that this year may result in a general housecleaning of campus politics. With wide-open elections, next year should see the most representative and capable student government that this campus has enjoyed in many years.—D.G.

Letters to the Editor . . .

NASTY REVIEW

Dear Editor:

Who sets the scope for a play review? Who indeed, but the reviewers? It is so easy to sit down and go through a couple of write-ups done by competent people and find out what should be covered and what shouldn't.

Hoping not to be misunderstood, I would like to ask a few questions in relation to yesterday's review. Questions which to me, although I am not an authority in the field of reviewing, seem rather obvious.

What did the reviewer think of the costumes? (The costuming was, as may have been noticed (?), quite an important part of this particular show.)

What did he think of the lighting? (The lighting was, as may have been noticed (?), quite an important part of this particular show.)

What did he think of the directing? (The directing is, as may be known (?), quite an important part of any show.)

Has the reviewer ever read the play?

Did he like the show or did he not like the show? (It was impossible for me to derive any definite conclusions in that direction from the paragraphs that appeared in yesterday's Kaimin.)

I would like, however, to give him some credit for some of the things in his review; e.g., I am sure that Jim Ward and Don Lichtwardt are very glad to know that they are still considered promising actors after having appeared in Masquer productions for a number of years. And the professional capability of the reviewer for noticing details showed itself clearly in the fact that he was able to ignore Dick Haag's acting and instead watch the mute play of the queen. His alert observation of the fact that grey is a color well suited for tragedy deserves credit, too. Undoubtedly the movie Hamlet stole this magnificent and novel idea from Simpkin's Little theater.

Now, would anybody write a play without having read one? Maybe this indicated a way in which to avoid the irrelevance and absurdity that may show up so strikingly as it did in the review in yesterday's Kaimin.

It is a crime, not toward the play, but toward the people who read the review to miss the boat so completely, to leave out points as the above mentioned. You don't have to praise the people who worked on costumes, lighting, setting, and directing, but you can at least give them a fair trial.

Jesper Jensen.

Selectrics Trip Montana 9-3

Lewiston, Ida., April 12.—(UP) The Great Falls Selectrics capped off the erratic pitching of Lucas at Lewiston today to win Montana State University score of 9 to 3.

Montana took a 2 to 0 lead in the inning but the professionals back in the second to score 3. With nobody on and two men out, Great Falls loaded the bases on walks and an error by Lucas. The straight walks by the Grizzlies gave the Selectrics three runs and a lead they never relinquished.

Catcher Tanner homered for the winners in the sixth frame with one on. The four-bagger put the game on ice. Park and Sandmeyer divided the pitching chores for the Selectrics.

Score by innings:
 Montana 200 001 0—3 7 5
 Great Falls 034 002 x—9 7 2
 Lucas and Mitchell; Park, Sandmeyer (6) and Winter, Tanner (6).

Increase Expected In Interscholastic Meet Applications

Entry blanks for the forty-fourth interscholastic meet May 19-20 on the university campus, will be mailed to more than 200 Montana high schools April 22 according to Prof. J. W. Howard, general chairman of the committee in charge.

Dr. Howard said the deadline for the return of the blanks will be May 8. He added that all high schools receiving entry blanks will not attend the meet but the committee does expect a greater representation of high schools this year than it had last year.

The major changes in the 1950 interscholastic meet schedule are that the meet will be for two days instead of three as has been the case in the past, and it will be in the third week in May instead of the second week, as in previous years.

The program for the meet will include track events, golf and tennis tournaments, a meeting of the interscholastic editorial association, speech events and a little theater festival. Prizes in athletic events will be given by the University, Missoula Kiwanis club, Missoula Rotary club and the Missoula Mercantile.

Grizzlies Schedule Match With Utah

The Grizzly tennis team will meet a strong Utah State college team here this week end. The Aggies have beaten MSU six consecutive times in the last four years, winning twice each year in 1946, 1947, and 1949. The 1948 match was rained out.

The Aggies have a new tennis coach this year in Paul Marston who is also football backfield coach. Marston is bringing four lettermen with him along with two other players.

Keith Larsen lost a close match to Bob Kramer, Richmond, Calif., last year and broke Bill Jardine's 20-match winning streak. The other Utah lettermen are Paul Madden, Wally Steinhilber, and Charles Carter. Ralph Downs and Duane Christensen make up the remainder of the team.

Duane Adams, outstanding Utah tennis player, was graduated at the end of winter quarter. Val Woodward is the other Aggie loss from last year's team.

The matches will start at 2 p.m. Friday and at 10 a.m. Saturday.

Cahoon Aids MSU Coach

Ivan "Tiny" Cahoon of the ROTC, former MSU player, is assisting Fred Erdhaus, assistant football coach, train Grizzly line-men during spring football practice.

"Tiny" Cahoon played center on the Montana Cub team of 1921. Then he was a tackle on Gonzaga's famous teams of 1922, 1923, and 1924. In 1924, when Gonzaga went undefeated, he received the Louis Barrett Inspiration medal.

Graduating in 1925 he went to Libby, Mont., where he introduced football in the high school. Ivan remained one year at Libby. The next four years he played tackle with the Green Bay Packers.

After his pro career he coached football at Nicolet high, DePere, Wis.; West high, Green Bay, Wis.; and Monmouth college, Monmouth, Ill. At Monmouth he coached Jim Vipond, famous little All-American guard in 1938-1939.

In 1940-1941 he coached the newly organized pro Milwaukee Chiefs in the American league. Joining the army in 1942, "Tiny" coached the Fort Belvoir Army team in Virginia.

Sergeant Cahoon's coaching record is 114 wins, 30 losses, and 6 ties.

Cahoon said the players turning out for spring practice look very good. "There is a lot of work to be done," he said, "but the boys look willing and full of spirit."
